

Julie Marlette joined the NYSSBA staff as deputy director of governmental relations in October of 2013.

Prior to her current role Julie held numerous roles in the New York State Legislature, first working in the office of Senate Minority Office of Conference Services; as Legislative Director for Assemblymember Susan John; as legislative Analyst for the Speaker's Office of Program and Counsel; and, as Senate Counsel Analyst for Elementary and Secondary education. Julie also served as a governmental relations representative for the New York State School Boards Association, where she has now returned in a new role.

After more than a decade in the State Capitol Julie relocated to New York City to become the Managing Director for state funding at T
